British Isles are well-known for their great places for tourists...

The portraiture

...but there are some places that are prettier than the others. A best example of such place are the famous cliffs of Moher (Irish: Aillte an Mhothair). This natural monument took its name from an old fort called "Moher" that once stood on Hag's Head, which is the most southerly point of the cliffs, where the cliffs form an unusual rock formation that resembles a woman's head looking out to the sea. Cliffs' height varies from 120 metres to 214 metres. Just 8 kilometres to the south from the highest point is O'Brien's Tower, which is basically a round stone tower built in 1835 by Sir Cornelius O'Brien to impress female visitors.

Wildlife and more

There are an estimated 30 thousand birds living on the cliffs, representing more than 20 species, for example Atlantic Puffins, Hawks, Gulls, Guillemots, Shags, Ravens, Choughs. This is truly a magnificent place, its charm is just undecipherable. There is a building with a gift shop and restaurant, but most importantly you can watch there a 3D movie about the cliffs and its inhabitants.

Some statistics and trivia

Cliffs of Moher have about 1 million tourists every year. To sum up, if you'll ever visit Ireland you should really consider visiting Cliffs of Moher, it's a beautiful and charming place that will really amaze you with everything that it has. Also note that one of the scenes from "Harry Potter and the HalfBlood Prince" was filmed there, along with a clip of Backstreet Boys.

Aleksandra Ruda - "Find your way"

Olghierda

I recommend this book because of the funny moments that often make you cry

Nothing's easy when you come from a village, want to learn at the best University of Magic and your name is totally not magical.

However, Olghierda Lacha a girl with a biting tongue and amazing charm grows to a master of crossout magic. And with such friends as Otton - a halfdwarf, Lira - the healer, Irga - a handsome necromancer and a few trolls, there's no place for boredom, EVER!

Irga

while laughing. I hope you'll like it as much as I do.

Otton

All you have to do is find your way.

Review

I read the book thanks to my sister. When I read the summary I thought it might be good. And I wasn't disappointed. It's an amazing story written by a Ukrainian with great skills. It can be loved because of the way it's written; its lightness and humour. You can laugh through the entire book. Ola goes to University where she meets Otto, Irga and Lira.

From the book you can learn that love eventually comes, even if you are not looking for it.

She is described as a student who loves alcohol and often suffers from breakdowns so she eats a lot of sweets. You can say that she's like any other woman. The first book Find your way is more like a collection of short stories about her and her friends' adventures.
